

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

Students want to borrow

Time for students to read.

Teachers and students reading,

A well resourced library.

Dedicated time

Students sharing their enthusiasm for books,

Silent reading in English classes

Everyone embracing reading - from the Principal to the English teacher to the PE teacher and the groundsman!

Staff modelling and encouraging students

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

Access to books and other reading material

A welcoming accessible school library

Teachers reading and showing interest in books and literature.

Qualified library staff.

Students excited about new books coming in

Supported by management team.

Students recommending titles they want to read

Books students choose to read

Positive engagement with the library

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

Reading is seen, celebrated and discussed. Adults model reading to students and people share their reading with others as a norm.

Modelling from teachers and other staff

A love of reading

All staff talking to students about reading. Not just English & library staff

Students requesting acquisitions

Peer and mentor modelling

Access to books, excitement for library sessions

Time to just read.

Students borrow books in the library. Students turn up in their wide reading program with a book or reading material.

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

Embedded class time in the curriculum for students to learn about books, come to library to look for, borrow and read book quietly

Time to read in classes

Engaging and stimulating books

timetabled library sessions/lessons

A reading program supported by leadership staff with a knowledge of ya

Library is seen as a hub, to support students and staff with resources for education and recreation.

Staff & leadership understanding the importance and impact of reading on student outcomes

A collection that constantly moves

Informal talk about reading in students

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

All involved in reading

Kids that not only borrow books but actually read them

Allocating time for reading for pleasure.

A vibrant and well-stocked school library (stocked with good books and good staff)

Getting classroom teachers onboard.

Whole school reading time

High borrowing

Reading models

Reading valued and modelled by all staff.

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

A variety of reading materials and formats

Time to access reading material

Engagement.

Well attended book club
Robust wide reading program

Staff who read to recommend books

All staff actively supporting/promoting reading not just English staff and a few selected others

Regular class visits to the library

Teachers coming to Book Club and sharing their reading

Vibrant display and promotion of new and popular books

What are the features of a strong reading culture in a school?

Dedicated reading time during the school day, not just library or English class.

Regular engagement in reading. enthusiasm. programs that are embedded in the curriculum. presenting the data. reading practices in the classroom